WHAT WE FACE NOW

NATIONAL FRONT: A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

BY FIGHTING 54 seats in the recent General Election the National Front has staged its biggest ever publicity and recruiting campaign. As a result of the volume of election literature put out — as well as the press and broadcasting publicity — a large induction of new members is now taking place.

The highest vote in the General Election of June 1970 in which the National Front put up ten candidates was 1,592. In this Election the highest vote was 3,662. The highest percentage gained in the last Election was 5.6%. In this Election it was about 8% — a figure achieved by George Bowen in West Bromwich West.

The movement also made important long-term gains in building an election machine and establishing credibility

AFTER nearly four years of disastrous Conservative Government we now face four years of disastrous Labour Government.

The Labour Party claims to stand up for the British working man. On the crucial question of immigration, however, the middle-class Fabian intellectuals and 'Socialist' millionaires who dominate the Party have completely betrayed the interests of the British working man.

Most of the immigrants were brought into this country by the Tories in order to swell the employment pool and thus undercut the bargaining position of British trades unionists. In the long term immigration is also being used to break down ethnic identity in order to eliminate any potential national barriers to the drive of international monopoly capitalism.

As the Labour Party is just as much a tool of Big Business as the Conservative Party, it has never offered any opposition to this criminal betrayal. In fact, the the negotiations that took us into the Common Market. Wilson only began to oppose the idea because the fraudulent two party system cannot be kept going if the opposition does not go through the motions of opposing the ruling party's policies.

Even if the Labour Government did decide to allow a national referendum on the question of Common Market membership, it could never withdraw Britain from the E.E.C. because it does not command an anti-Common Market majority in Parliament.

Another Asian invasion

FOLLOWING the massive influx of East African Asians from Uganda in 1972 we are now faced with an influx from Kenya. It was announced on February 24th that the trading licences of non-citizen Kenyan Asian businessmen would not be renewed. The Asian community in Kenya numbering some 200,000 are, of course, mainly composed of businessmen and their families.

Although the story was almost completely suppressed by the mass media in order to avoid embarrassing Establishment politicians during the General Election, the Press Association admitted that it was well aware of the situation.

Last December the Daily Mirror named the areas where the Government were going to send Kenyan Asians. These are Leicester, Birmingham, and the London boroughs of Brent, Ealing, Harrow, Barnet, Newham, Wandsworth and Hounslow.

In many of these areas education, welfare and housing are

INFLATION

The Labour Party intends to fight rising prices by use of subsidies. This merely transfers the burden — it does not tackle the root cause.

As long as Britain is so dependent on international markets beyond our control, and as long as we are subject to a system of credit based on interest bearing debt created by private banks, we are bound to suffer from economic crises of one sort or another.

The Labour Party claims to be 'Socialist' whatever precisely it may mean by the term. The real concentrations of power and wealth — the multi-national corporations and international financial institutions — are never challenged by the Labour Party, however.

Although the Labour Party gets much of its money by cheating trades unionists the party is really controlled by the influence of a cosmopolitan clique of chainstore owners, merchant bankers and whiz kids of the publishing world. THE RATES of the Labour controlled Greater London Council are to go up by at least 44%. This rise is only partly due to inflation. It is, of course, a deliberate objective of Labour Party policy to take as much money as possible out of the hands of ordinary people and to place it under the control of bureaucracy.

The man who wound up the debate on the increases was Dr. David Pitt who is to become the Chairman of the G.L.C. from May. Dr. Pitt, who is a coloured immigrant from Grenada in the West Indies, will be London's official representative on many ceremonial occasions.

Tory ploy fails

The Tory ploy to fight the General Election on an anti-trades union ticket instead of on its own record has been a total failure. Heath has not held on to power but it is the British people that have to pay the price for his desperate bid to do so. The completely unnecessary three day week, which was imposed in order to turn other groups of workers against the miners, must soon result in a much lowered standard of living.

If the Tories had won they too would have had to settle with the miners. Such a settlement passed on to the consumer in the form of dearer coal merely redistributes money already in circulation and is not inflationary. The Tory Government stance, therefore, was totally bogus. The real cause of inflation is not the demand for wage increases but the Government's own financial policies. It is with Government that the solutions lie.

The other industrial dispute at issue before the Election was that concerning the railmen. Britain's archaic union system is plagued by demarcation disputes and inter-union rivalry. Nowhere is this more apparent than on the railways. The National Front advocates one large, strong and democratic union per industry. Controversy over pay differentials can then be confined to internal dispute instead of being worked out at the expense of the general public.

One other aspect of the Tory stance deserves comment. Heath made much capital out of the fact that Communists hold high office in many trades unions.

Biggest food price rise since War

IN THE calendar year from December to December, the 1973 food price increase of 19p in the £ was the biggest since the Second World War. Since the last General Election of June 1970 food prices have risen by 48.7%.

A very large factor in these massive increases is undoubtedly the Common Market. Before British entry we were promised by the pro-Marketeers that the rise in the price of food as a result of entry would only be 1p in the £ each year for three years. This was a blatant lie.

Other factors involved include the general rise in world food prices upon which Britain is needlessly dependent. A substantial cause of this rise was the massive shipment of American grain to Communist Russia, which resulted in a shortage of feed in the Western world and thus higher prices for meat. The deal was organised by the U.S. Department of Agriculture acting in accordance with grain speculators.

WHERE LABOUR'S MARKETEERS GOT THEIR MONEY

HOW laughable is the claim that the Labour Party is the party of the British worker. Even more laughable is the claim of the large number of Labour politicians who support the Common Market "because entry into Europe will mean a better deal for the British worker".

This powerful clique of Labour politicians is known as the Labour Committee for Europe.

Who are their supporters? Where do they get the cash to pay for their propaganda?

From the British worker? From the constituency zealot? From the Unions?

Not at all. They get their money from the big business concerns who they claim to protect the British worker from.

ASTMS, the supervisor technicians union have revealed the names of these backers of the Labour marketeers.

They are Barclays Bank, British American Tobacco, Courtaulds, Dunlop, Imperial Tobacco, Marks & Spencer, Plessey, Rank Hovis, McDougall and Watney Mann.

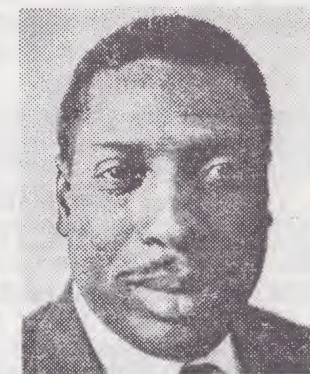

Other major supporters of the Labour Committee for Europe are large American firms like Kodak and IBM.

BOOM IN INDUSTRY AHEAD

ONE industry not badly hit by Britain's continuing economic crisis is the race relations industry. A draft report laid before the Home Secretary's Advisory Committee on race relations reveals that not only has the amount being invested in race relations research trebled since 1970, but that the industry has substantial growth prospects ahead.

Without sharing Heath's motivations for condemning this, it should nevertheless be of concern to us all. Were Michael McGahey to be living in the Soviet Union he would no doubt be directing troops to suppress miners' strikes rather than inciting troops to support one.

Changing nothing

As the new 'great debate' on the Common Market develops it will no doubt centre on terms rather than on the question of British membership itself. This would allow the Labour Party to gain a great anti-Common Market victory against a front of stiff opposition without actually changing anything important.

In the year 1973-4 some quarter of a million pounds came from Government sources. It was recently suggested that Dr. Little, who is white, had been given preferential treatment by the Community Relations Commission with regard to his promotion. Mr. Aaron Haynes, the Community Relations Officer for Wolverhampton, issued a memorandum accusing the C.R.C. of racial discrimination. The Community Relations Officer in Luton, meanwhile, has resigned because an Indian-Bangladeshi caucus has formed in his area and is excluding West Indian, Pakistani, and Sikh elements from executive positions. If notions of racist supremacy are endemic in Mark Bonham Carter's C.R.C. then what hope can he have of 'educating' the rest of humanity?

Changing nothing

As the new 'great debate' on the Common Market develops it will no doubt centre on terms rather than on the question of British membership itself. This would allow the Labour Party to gain a great anti-Common Market victory against a front of stiff opposition without actually changing anything important.

Ulster rejects Sunningdale

The election of eleven Loyalist M.P.'s to Westminster shows a flat rejection of the policies foisted on Ulster by the United Kingdom Government. If the democratic will of Ulster is to be given some real effect, however, there must be early elections to the new Ulster Assembly, scrapping of the totally unrepresentative 'power-sharing' executive, and abandonment without trace of the Sunningdale agreement to set up a Council of Ireland.

In the long term the sell out of Ulster can only be arrested by the victory of patriotic forces in Britain as a whole. The somewhat parochial nature of Ulster politics is quite understandable given the immediate dangers. If Ulster is to survive, however, it will be necessary for Ulstermen to widen their struggle to Great Britain.

What is a Liberal?

As dissatisfaction with the two major political parties has grown the 'national' press has deliberately built up the Liberals in order to channel this dissatisfaction in a direction that is politically safe for the ruling Establishment.

The fact that the Liberal leader, Jeremy Thorpe, even considered entering a coalition with the Tories, however, must have done much to undermine the idea of the Liberal party as a genuine alternative. Another factor that ought to disillusion many supporters was the grant from the Rank Organisation, which also finances the Conservative Party.

The reactions provoked by the coalition discussions further demonstrated that although Jeremy Thorpe may know which way he is going, the Liberal rank and file are a hopeless collection of conflicting political elements that have simply jumped on the proverbial bandwagon. Campaigning on apolitical issues such as cracked pavements they can be held together. Faced with decisions (slight though they may be) in the real political world, however, and the Liberals can never do anything but fall apart in confusion.

late Victor Gollancz.

Indeed, the Labour Party's own newspaper, Labour Weekly, is printed by the Westminster Press Ltd. which is part of the giant finance-industrial-publishing conglomerate of S. Pearson and Son Ltd. Its Chairman, Lord Cowdray, is a sponsor of the Conservative Party.

ENERGY RESOURCES

The Labour Party advocates full public ownership of North Sea and Celtic Sea oil and gas. However, it also advocates that the British Government should take the initiative in setting up an International Energy Commission which would decide the: "allocation of available oil resources . . ." The Labour Party, therefore, are 'nationalising' our oil merely to hand it over to some Common Market style institution dominated by foreigners!

FOREIGN POLICY

give more of our money away in the form of foreign aid and pledges: "support for the liberation (sic) movements of Southern Africa . . ." Were this party of people with armchair consciences to be given a real idea of just what terrorism involves one hopes that they would think twice.

On January 7th of this year a band of about 60 drugged terrorists descended on the village of Nhacambo (population 500) which is in the Marara Region of Mozambique, 80 km. north-west of Tete. The group was led by the Frelimo area commander, Maconde Fernando Napulula, whose brother, Januario, recently defected to the Portuguese authorities.

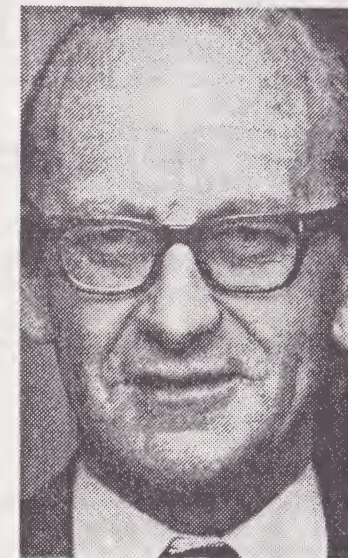

Six-year-old Antonio Alexandre was riddled in the head and chest with machine-gun bullets because his father was a militiaman. A twenty-five year old woman, Vaida Cecipo, was bayoneted in the back while her husband looked on helpless. Eight-year-old Fabra Tausene had one of her arms hacked off with a panga and then had her intestines ripped out. Maria Chinsoro, sixty, was battered over the head with an axe until her skull cracked. In all some 17 were killed and 31 horribly maimed. The 'freedom fighters' then put the village to the torch.

This is the kind of foreign policy advocated by Labour.

Community Relations Officer for Wolverhampton, issued a memorandum accusing the C.R.C. of racial discrimination. The Community Relations Officer in Luton, meanwhile, has resigned because an Indian-Bangladeshi caucus has formed in his area and is excluding West Indian, Pakistani, and Sikh elements from executive positions. If notions of racist supremacy are endemic in Mark Bonham Carter's C.R.C. then what hope can he have of 'educating' the rest of humanity?

FORD FOUNDATION

Other funds have flowed from the Ford Foundation to finance research at Cambridge University, and from the Hilden Charitable Trust to the Runnymede Trust's census cooking project. The latter has just issued a report showing that Britain's coloured population rose by nearly 50% from 1966 to 1971 and now numbers 1,385,600. Even if one accepts this ridiculously low figure, the coloured population will still number well over ten million by the year 2000 if it continues to increase at the same rate.

BRITISH EDUCATION COLLAPSING UNDER IMMIGRANT STRAIN

Who are the muggers?

"The muggers are usually boys between 14 and 19 and a good 95 per cent of all street offences in our area are committed by black youths."

— Det. Chief Inspector Pat Sugrue, Divisional CID chief, on crime in the London Borough of Lambeth.

EDUCATION in Newham is teetering on the brink of total collapse. The Borough is the poorest in London. Local schools are overcrowded — the Ugandan Asian influx having drastically aggravated the situation. Not enough money is available for schooling and Newham is losing teaching staff. Discipline and general conditions in some schools are so bad that the TEACHER absentee rate reached 30% in some schools last year — a fact of which Newham's Director of Education knew nothing, so he claimed!

Newham is not a glaring exception amongst London Boroughs. It is merely a typical example of the slide into chaos and anarchy that characterises education today not only in London but in most of Britain's other conurbations.

In November 1973 one hundred and fifty Newham children were without school places. An honest Labour Alderman, Mr. Arthur Edwards, pinpointed the immediate cause of this scandalous situation: the influx of Ugandan Asians. He said: "I warned the Government a year ago that the expelled Ugandans should not come here. While we had the utmost sympathy for their plight we were in no position to take them. It overloaded the schools which were already full. And it is the Government who must take the responsibility. They keep telling us that our school population is going down but this is nonsense."

The local newspaper, The Newham Recorder, gave a front the educational system. There are so many children who are illiterate when they leave school and who have bad manners and commit acts of vandalism for which there is very little excuse." Children should be taught to read and become competent in arithmetic. Too many children, he said, were not getting these basics from teachers.

COUNCIL NEGLECT

The consequences of immigration and indiscipline have apparently had little impact upon Newham Education Committee if the report which appeared last November is anything to go by. The report on the problems of

BLACK youngsters are be-

EDUCATION in Newham is teetering on the brink of total collapse. The Borough is the poorest in London. Local schools are overcrowded — the Ugandan Asian influx having drastically aggravated the situation. Not enough money is available for schooling and Newham is losing teaching staff. Discipline and general conditions in some schools are so bad that the TEACHER absentee rate reached 30% in some schools last year — a fact of which Newham's Director of Education knew nothing, so he claimed!

DEPUTY HEAD QUITS RACE RIOT SCHOOL

BLACK youngsters are becoming increasingly open in showing no desire to learn but attempting, instead, to disrupt the functioning of their schools.

Writing in the race relations magazine, Race Today, in January, Mr. Farrukh Dhondy said this of black children: "Their models of ambition don't include the work ethic and this single fact enlivens their reaction to the system within the school. They challenge discipline, study and routine." Mr. Dhondy is a teacher at Archbishop Temple's Comprehensive, Lambeth Rd., South London.

Teachers are reluctant to discipline black schoolchildren for fear of precipitating a racial incident. As a consequence white youths resent the favourable treatment accorded Newham is not a glaring exception amongst London Boroughs. It is merely a typical example of the slide into chaos and anarchy that characterises education today not only in London but in most of Britain's other conurbations.

In November 1973 one hundred and fifty Newham children were without school places. An honest Labour Alderman, Mr. Arthur Edwards, pinpointed the immediate cause of this scandalous situation: the influx of Ugandan Asians. He said: "I warned the Government a year ago that the expelled Ugandans should not come here. While we had the utmost sympathy for their plight we were in no position to take them. It overloaded the schools which were already full. And it is the Government who must take the responsibility. They keep telling us that our school population is going down but this is nonsense."

The local newspaper, The Newham Recorder, gave a front page lead to the story. The result was predictable. Thirty-two demonstrators drawn from eight organisations including the International Marxist Group, the Hackney Committee Against Racism, the International Socialists, the Young Communist League and the Black Worker Movement picketed the Recorder's offices and daubed its entrance with the slogan 'racists out'.

FAILURE TO MAINTAIN DISCIPLINE

Failure to maintain discipline is another major cause of the present educational crisis. This failure is caused mainly by the dominance of trendy anti-disciplinarian ideas amongst the educational Establishment. These attitudes have been spread to children with disastrous consequences.

In January 1973 Mr. Steven

the educational system. There are so many children who are illiterate when they leave school and who have bad manners and commit acts of vandalism for which there is very little excuse." Children should be taught to read and become competent in arithmetic. Too many children, he said, were not getting these basics from teachers.

COUNCIL NEGLECT

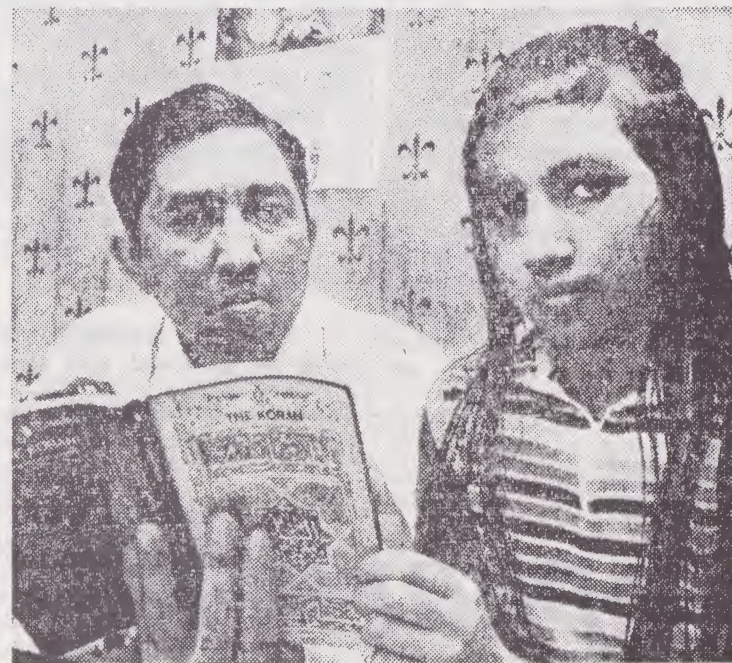

The consequences of immigration and indiscipline have apparently had little impact upon Newham Education Committee if the report which appeared last November is anything to go by. The report on the problems of Newham's comprehensive school system was compiled by local secondary school heads and placed before the committee.

It revealed the amazing fact that the staff absentee rate at two schools during 1972/3 was 30%! At another seven of Newham's sixteen comprehensive schools the absentee rate was 20%. Even more incredibly, Newham's Director of Education said that this had never been reported to him before. Rate-payers may be forgiven for thinking that it was precisely his job to see that such occurrences were reported to him, and then to act on them effectively and promptly.

BLEAK FUTURE

Should teacher absenteeism continue to increase at the present alarmingly high rate and should we be faced with another influx

Separate schools: the only short term solution

Mr. Abdullah Patel with daughter Kulsumbanu

KULSUMBANU PATEL is at the centre of a race row. Bradford Education Committee are demanding her attendance at a mixed school. Her father, Mr. Abdullah Patel, stated: "... my religion does not permit me to allow my daughter to mix with males."

Mr. Patel is a Bombay University graduate with an honours degree in Islamic culture and history. He believes that this kind of integration is impossible: "The religion and culture of Asians is totally different."

Mr. Patel is to open his own school for Moslem girls. We welcome this exercise in educational apartheid. When the National Front comes to power all immigrants will have separate schools until they are repatriated.

Teachers are reluctant to discipline black schoolchildren for fear of precipitating a racial incident. As a consequence white youths resent the favourable treatment accorded to blacks. A recent report in the London Evening Standard quoted a white boy who habitually played truant: "There's no point being at school . . . The whole place is geared to the blacks. Not to us . . . no one says anything when they smoke or come without uniform because no one wants to upset them. But not us. We have to do what the teacher says."

The deputy headmaster of the infamous Tulse Hill Comprehensive School in Brixton has resigned because he could not cope with the worsening racial situation there. The school is almost 50% West Indian.

Mr. Peter Humber, 38, wrote: "I have been unhappy about my inability to communicate with the incredibly alienated black children at Tulse Hill." In particular he blamed small groups of very anti-social blacks for the increase in violent flare-ups. Confronting them resulted in alienating all the other blacks as well.

The headmaster, Mr. Raymond Long, is also planning to leave though not — he claims — for the same reasons.

The school first attracted attention two years ago when its pupils were accused of beating up rival pupils from the nearby Strand Grammar School.

FAILURE TO MAINTAIN DISCIPLINE

Failure to maintain discipline is another major cause of the present educational crisis. This failure is caused mainly by the dominance of trendy anti-disciplinarian ideas amongst the educational Establishment. These attitudes have been spread to children with disastrous consequences.

In January 1973 Mr. Steven Forrester who had been a biology master at Langdon Comprehensive School, East Ham, received a presentation to mark his 26 years teaching service to the borough. He used the occasion to address members of Newham Education Committee in a forthright manner: "I feel that the ratepayer is not getting value for his money from

Should teacher absenteeism continue to increase at the present alarmingly high rate and should we be faced with another influx of Asians, there can be little doubt that the educational system in Newham will be one of the first to go under completely.

The only hope now is for a total halt to all further immigration, segregated schooling until the immigrants can be repatriated, and a return to traditional methods of teaching.

DR. SPOCK RECANTS

DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK, the child psychologist, has retracted the permissive theories on child rearing that he advanced twenty-eight years ago in his book, Baby and Child Care. In Redbook, an American women's magazine, he has confessed that the "know-it-all" attitudes of child psychologists and experts like himself had helped to produce "too many children who were disobedient, difficult to deal with and over-indulgent."

Since his book was first published in 1946 it has sold more than 25 million copies and has been translated into thirty languages. Though Spock's original message may well have been a step in the right direction, there is no doubt that it has been taken to a ridiculous extreme by a whole army of sociologists, psychologists and social anthropologists whose motives may not solely have been concerned with the immediate welfare of children.

International trading system forces us into debt

THE ideal of 'orthodox' economists is for a country to export more than it imports and thus achieve a 'trade surplus'. All this means is that goods which could have been used for the benefit of the home market are given away to foreign countries.

It is important to remember, however, that one country's surplus is another country's deficit and that in order to pay for the extra goods the importing country is forced to seek foreign currency loans from the international banking system at extortionate rates of interest. This is all highly profitable for the robber barons of the private banks as well as the power hungry meglomaniacs of the International Monetary Fund. For the nations of the world, however, it is yet further encirclement by the tentacles of the subterranean Money Power.

Britain currently finds itself in just this situation. Not only will the Government be seeking a loan from the International Monetary Fund but nationalised industries and local authorities from the Greater London Council downwards will be forced to borrow foreign exchange regardless of whether they have any direct requirements for it.

The Gas Corporation and the electricity industry have already dived into the Eurodollar pool. Some $2,000 million may be borrowed this year and at a rate of over 10%.

ADVANCE AUSTRALIA FAIR

EMIGRATION enquiries at the Australian and New Zealand High Commissions in London have more than doubled since the present economic and industrial crisis in Britain. What kind of place will these people be going to, however?

According to Australia's Minister for Immigration, Mr. A. J. Grassby, the 'White Australia' policy is now history. There is no colour bar in Australia and there is no selection of emigrants on the basis of national origin or race. "We buried the White Australia Policy years ago," he answered a West Indian reporter during his recent visit to Britain, "and in fact my first trip as Minister was a recruiting visit to Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore and Japan."

Mr. Grassby concluded: "... we want people in Australia who have a sense of adventure, a desire to contribute to the growth of a new nation in the making." Mr. Grassby warded off questions about the ghettos formed by non-British immigrants in Australia as well as the way in which international criminals are using the country as a hideout.

Latest in the East-West Axis

WESTERN capitalist involvement in the U.S.S.R. has taken yet another step forward. Barclays Bank International will be the first British bank to actually open a representative office in Moscow. It is setting up a joint venture with the merchanting group, Tozer, Kemsley and Millbourn, together with Lazards — the merchant bankers.

The group hopes to cream off some of the same sort of business that Morgan Grenfell has been doing. The latter has been concerned in three East European contracts since November which involve over £50 million — more than half the total value of the U.K.'s current exports to Russia.

The first contract was for Courtaulds to supply a £27 million cellulose spinning and processing plant to the Soviet Union. The second involves the supply of £14 million worth of machine tools to the Likhachov automobile plant by Staveley Industries. The third is for G.K.N. to supply a £10 million forging plant to Poland.

to exchange information on commercial aircraft and helicopter construction, machine tools, computer systems and other equipment.

This kind of thing is, of course, nothing new. Only a month after the Bolshevik seizure of power the All Russian Congress of Councils of the National Economy approved the wholesale involvement of Western capitalism in Russia through the use of concessions. Even the first Soviet Five Year Plan was financed by the New York banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Professor Anthony Sutton, a research fellow at Stanford University, has been researching Soviet technology for ten years. In his book, Western Technology and Soviet Economic Development, he concludes: "There is no such thing as Soviet technology. Almost all — perhaps 90 to 95% — came directly or indirectly from the United States or its allies."

Would someone please tell us why Britain still bothers to spend money on defence?

NO NEED TO INFILTRATE

A LEADING article in Railway Review, the newspaper of the National Union of Railwaymen, suggested that the National Front is trying "to infiltrate the trade union movement". Walter Barton, an active trades unionist and a leading member of the National Front, dismissed this claim as complete nonsense. Many NF members were, like himself, trades unionists before joining the movement, while those that were NF members first made no secret of the fact when they later joined trades unions. The only people 'infiltrating' the trades unions were Communists.

Walter Barton addressing
National Front meeting

The National Front is not anti-working class or anti-trades union, but does in fact advocate the creation of bigger, stronger and more democratic trades unions.

Walter Barton was an Electrical Trades Union shop steward at the North West Electricity Board's Linley House in Manchester from 1965-9. He was elected again in 1973 and has built up a 100% union membership there. On January 23rd of this year he was elected to serve for two years on the E.T.U.'s Number Eleven (North West) Area Committee, and will thus automatically become a delegate to the E.T.U. National Conference.

Walter has never made any secret of his own National Front membership either within or outside his union, and has in fact been interviewed on television about his membership of the NF.
